Proceeds Benefit EVMS for Breast Cancer Research

The Chesapeake Bay Wine Classic Foundation held its 7th Annual Wine Women & Fishing Tournament Sunday, August 16th, 2009 with 29 boats and more than 150 lady anglers participating. Joining forces with the Virginia Beach Billfish Tournament, the festivities took place under the festival tent at "The View" on the south side of Rudee Inlet, thanks to the generosity of property owners and supporters, Cheryl and Wayne McLeskey.

Ann Black led the winning boat Triflin with three sailfish and a white marlin. Black also won honors as Top Lady Angler of the tournament. Second Place in the tournament went to Wayne Sawyer's Victory Lap, with 3 sailfish. Third place went to Sea Wolf, also with three sailfish. The Hard Luck Award went to Dena Sawyer on Victory Lap for a bathing suit malfunction while bringing in a sailfish and the Wave Runner II won the Crazy Crew award for an "exceptional performance" before the 12 tournament judges at the tournament's conclusion. The Top Junior angler award went to fourteen year old Hunter Bayne for a successful catch and release of a sailfish aboard the Sniper.

Wine Women & Fishing is held each year by the Chesapeake Bay Wine Classic Foundation with proceeds benefiting the Eastern Virginia Medical School for breast cancer research. WWF has raised more than $130,000 for EVMS and on hand to thank the participants was Harry Lester, President of EVMS. The tournament was followed by a party hosted by the CBWCF and its sponsors. This year's event was highlighted by the appearance of the Robert Foley Band from California. In addition to his band, Foley is a world renowned Napa Valley winemaker who was making special appearances in Virginia Beach to promote the CBWCF and its charitable work.

We enthusiastically thank everyone who participated in the tournament, especially the anglers, the captain and mates and our wonderful volunteers. Farm Fresh, Cheryl and Wayne McLeskey, Theresa and Wayne Sawyer, Charles Barker, The Virginia Beach Billfish Tournament, Associated Distributors – The Charmer Sunbelt Group and Hoffman Beverage Company were some of the very generous sponsors and we appreciate their continued support. Tournament Director, Paige Ray worked tirelessly to ensure a fantastic event.
